

[e1] By purchasing illegally acquired tax data of citizens,

[e2] the state is not only turning itself into a felon,

[e3] but it is paying criminals, too.

[e4] Besides, the purchase of such CDs is unnecessary today,

[e5] as,

[e6] due to changed terms of business,

[e7] many banks urge their customers to turn themselves in.

[e8] Acquiring CDs with tax data of tax delinquents is therefore out of the question.

[e9] It is indisputable, however, that by purchasing such data the state increases the pressure on tax evaders to turn themselves in.
