

[e1] The universities in Germany should not under any circumstances charge tuition fees.

[e2] This would impede or prevent access to those who are financially weaker.

[e3] The anticipated objectives of tuition fees can be achieved by other means.

[e4] There are other instruments to motivate tighter discipline while studying.

[e5] And funding-wise it ought to be considered how costs incurred by students from other (federal) states can be reimbursed.
